DSPCSP 44/26 Chair's Introduction

Beverly Simpson acted as Chair for the PCSP Meeting and welcomed all members and presenters to the September meeting.

DSPCSP 45/26 Presentations

1. Dr Claire Sinton – Smartphone Free Childhood

Dr Claire Sinton gave members information about her background, ie, Paediatrician in a maternity hospital, and she has 4 children pre-primary age.

She informed members of the importance of protecting a child's brain and that social media was addictive and manipulative by design. The impact on children include their eyes, sleep, and mental health. The main aim was to promote a smart free childhood with no mobile phone in schools. The organisation has written to Westminster with regards to children and smartphones stating it was a public emergency.

The Chair thanked Dr Sinton for the presentation and asked if members had questions.

Marie Brown stated Women's Aid see first-hand the impact of smartphones, particularly when it comes to the access children and young people have to pornography etc. She offered Smartphone Free Childhood any support which would help the organisation and gave a commitment that Women's Aid would escalate this regionally.

Response: It has exploded and parents are desperate and fully aware of the issues. PSNI work in schools – this message needs to be heard to keep kids safe online; a soft approach in messaging is no good as predators are acting on this. In some areas this is not impossible, the statistics are clear in the presentation. Whilst it is overwhelming, it is impossible to keep a child safe who is using a smartphone. It would be positive to see the PSNI supporting the organisation as things work better in collaboration. Statements need to be brave and bold in relation to use of smart phones.

PSNI understand the issues with parents as they receive complaints about sexting and exploitation, where children are being groomed online with exchange of monies in some cases. Parents would not put a child in a room with a paedophile but they leave them with a smartphone. The issue needs properly controlled. It affects children's cognitive development. When online there is a risk and this is often contributing to disorder within the City as smartphones are being used to arrange disorder.

PSNI confirmed support of the organisation and look forward to working in collaboration. Supt Claire Hamilton explained PSNI do have strong media campaigns in relation to the dangers of sextortion etc, and are receiving daily calls from parents whose child has been groomed online.

Dr Claire Sinton requested that DCSDC formally partner with the organisation particularly around schools events and awareness raising.

The PCSP Manager stated this proposal would have to go to a Council Committee as PCSP are a separate body from Council. The PCSP Manager said she would speak to the director with regards to this proposal.

PCSP Manager

Paul Ryan from the Youth Justice Agency informed members they regularly get sexting referrals to YJA. He said that some do not realise it is a criminal offence and think it is normal behaviour. A sensible protocol is taken in order that they do not have a criminal record.

Dr Claire Sinton stated it should not be the responsibility of the young people as they do not grasp the information. It should be parents/schools that make the decision. If schools ban mobile phones then children cannot use them. Rules should be made for children as they cannot make rules themselves.

DSPCSP 45/26

2. Sarah Simpson – Ulsterbus Northern Area Manager Translink

Sarah Simpson informed members that Ulsterbus services were under her remit and took members through various issues that were brought up by members at the last PCSP meeting.

Topics included:

Driver Training - training at Translink Training Academy includes dealing with; difficult incidents, vulnerable passengers – women and girls travelling on buses, ASB, sharing training with partners, and to build confidence of customers.

Passenger Safety – Translink work in partnership with PSNI; officers work with the Safe Transport Team who meet regularly to share feedback and discuss specific areas to be targeted.

No Fare – there is an obligation for passengers to hold a valid ticket. If a customer cannot make payment they are issued with an 'Unpaid Fare' docket and should provide some form of ID so Translink can endeavour to recoup this revenue. When it is a vulnerable person or a child, drivers have discretion to consider alternative methods of recovering revenue when appropriate.

ASB – drivers can be in a difficult situation and are advised to try to remain enroute but may need to stop the bus and seek assistance in some circumstances. Drivers are advised not to leave the safety of their cab unless it is unavoidable, it gives the individual protection and allows them to retain control of the bus.

Suspension of Service – In relation to the incident of 10th June 2026 which had been raised by members at the June PCSP meeting, Sarah Simposn said the suspension of service decision had been taken based on a risk-based consideration of the evolving situation across Northern Ireland. This involved real-time engagement and discussions with key stakeholders including PSNI, local authorities and trade unions. She said Translink recognised the impact suspending a service can have on passengers, and it is not a decision that is taken lightly.

The Chair thanked Sarah Simpson for her presentation and invited members to come forward with questions.

Marie Brown referred to the 10th June suspension of service, she said it had badly affected migrant people who were left to walk through some areas where there were riots. This was a terrifying experience as they felt isolated and exposed.

She explained Translink and PSNI were reviewing the situation as it developed and suggested that if incidences like this occurred in the future that a different pick-up point should be communicated so parents/children would not be left in this position. This must be reviewed with PSNI to be prepared for future occurrences.

Translink/PSNI

Marie Brown said she has been on a bus when ASB happened, it had been dealt with very well and the bus drivers had been brilliant. The physical location of the toilets at Foyle Street depot means that it is not safe for women if they need to use the toilets. Also there is the issue of having to walk past bins to get into the bus station. This is not a good look for the City we are trying to promote Response: The comments were appreciated and would be taken back to Translink. At the time of the suspension of the service in early summer, schools were contacted re circumstances. It was very challenging with such short notice. Earlier pick-ups were offered. Schools had also made decisions of their own.

She explained that there are funding issues in relation to the infrastructure of the Foyle Street Station but said there could be some thinking done around using security staff at the station to help people feel safer.

Marie Brown thanked Sarah Simpson for the presentation. She mentioned the North West often got left out and compared the local station to Grand Central Station. She said there are enough people travelling to make it a better facility.

It was also mentioned that Magee required more buses for those travelling to/from Belfast. Consultation is required with regards to these journeys.

Response: In relation to access to toilets this will be taken back and reviewed for a solution.

Translink

Supt Claire Hamilton confirmed that Translink drivers/staff should be made aware of ringing 999 if they need support and stated that these calls should be answered within 10 seconds.

Translink

Linda Watson – informed members that she had received training with DEEDS, in the community sector (based in OLT Creggan), with regards to Dementia. She asked if Translink drivers were trained in this area. She informed members that DEEDS recently got 5 years funding to provide this training.

Sarah Simposn confirmed drivers were not specifically trained in this area but would be more than happy to share the details of DEEDS re dementia training with Translink.

Translink

The Chairperson reiterated that as the dark nights approach, drivers should be made aware through training, to focus on young vulnerable girls.

Sarah Simpson reassured members that drivers are informed of this through the training academy and they would be encouraged to look for signs. She stated this would be reviewed over time, in case something else could be achieved.

DSPCSP 46/26 Chairperson's Business

The Chair informed members that nothing had been submitted by members to be raised during Chairperson's Business.

Cllr Christopher Jackson stated he felt concerns should be raised by the PCSP given that the whole of the North had been volatile over the previous days as a result of growing tensions on the Garvaghy Road. He said he was under the impression that this would be raised at the meeting under Chairperson's Business.

He said the last number of nights had seen attacks and violence in the Waterside. He condemned the disruption in Irish Street and Top of the Hill and stressed that residents should not feel unsafe in their homes.

Cllr Jackson stated that those responsible for the disorder did not represent the local community and acknowledged the solidarity shown by Irish Street residents. He expressed concern that recent events had damaged the positive working relationship and confidence built between communities, statutory agencies and the PSNI.

There is a good working relationship with statutory agencies and Cllr Jackson stated he would like to see that partnership working continue to grow. However he said what had happened on the Garvaghy Road had dealt a major blow to partnership working.

He was particularly critical of the policing response at Garvaghy Road, stating that it had undermined public confidence. He said people he had spoken to saw PSNI as part on the problem not the solution. The PSNI assessment had failed to reflect the risk and said whoever was making the decision did not value the relationships which have been built up across the North.

Cllr Jackson referred to PSNI and the fact they could not afford resourcing/budget for funding CCTV cameras or EVAWG to help people feel safe, but when it comes to situations like this, they have all the resources in the world. They have the resources such as armed police, to march towards groups of young people and to stare down residents in their own streets. While not condoning the actions of those involved in disorder, he questioned whether sufficient steps had been taken to de-escalate tensions.

He referred to similar scenes in the City last night where petrol bombs had been thrown and stated three crates of petrol bombs were taken away.

He said the optics of armed police marching towards young people had been particularly bad. Anybody that does not see how it looks; it is a not a good step for PSNI.

Cllr Jackson advised that he had raised concerns re the termination of the Parades Commission and it looks like these concerns have fallen on deaf ears. He added that it would be disingenuous to stay at the meeting whilst the threat remained at Garvaghy Road. He said he had entered into these partnerships in good faith, but it could not be "business as usual" and that he and his party members would be excusing themselves from the meeting,

At 11.17am - Cllr Christopher Jackson, Cllr Fergal Leonard, and Cllr Emma McGinley left the meeting.

As they exited the Chamber the Chairperson asked whether they wished to remain to give the PSNI a chance to respond to the points raised by Cllr Jackson.

Supt Clare Hamilton expressed regret that the three councillors had left the meeting before she could respond. She advised that senior leadership within PSNI had released a statement in relation to Garvaghy Road yesterday, which was circulated to PCSP members. She confirmed she had not been involved in decisions relating to Garvaghy Road.

Supt Hamilton confirmed she was part of the Policing Response in the City and had responded to the disorder within the community. PSNI have a duty to protect the public and their officers who work to keep the community safe. They wear protective equipment and clothing when petrol bombs are being thrown. She stated it was a difficult political situation and confirmed that PSNI would continue to engage with communities and political representatives from all parties.

Marie Brown said the City does not want to see trouble like this back on the streets again. She stated that the Assistant Chief Constable (ACC)was one of the best Northern Ireland has ever had and hope he remained in post. He has been open-handed and completed a critical assessment in his own organisation. Dialogue is important, we need to listen to everyone's perspective rather than leaving the meeting which is cowardly. The political people need to get round the table instead of point-scoring. The City has nothing to do with Garvaghy Road.

Supt Claire Hamilton thanked Marie Brown for her comments, she felt the ACC was good and said he had done a lot for the PSNI internally. She confirmed additional resources had been deployed to deal with the disorder in the City, so they had normal resourcing and it had not affected normal policing duties.

Ald Keith Kerrigan also expressed disappointment that representatives had felt the need to make a statement and then walk out without engaging further. He condemned attacks on the PSNI and the Waterside community, described the disorder as recreational rioting which puts a strain on already tight police resources and stressed that nobody wanted a return to past conflict.

Ald Kerrigan noted that the Parades Commission had made a decision regarding Garvaghy Road which the PSNI had to enforce. He highlighted progress made around parading arrangements in the City and district over recent decades and expressed concern that this progress should not be undermined. Parading has changed massively in the last 30-40 years; a lot of good work had gone in to putting arrangements in place and he wouldn't like to see these arrangements pulled apart because of what happened in Portadown.

Patsy McGonagle condemned the disorder including young people involved in petrol bomb attacks and of young people recording this violence on smartphones to upload to social media. He said he was concerned there was a sinister element behind the violence He expressed disappointment at representatives leaving the meeting. He stressed that continued dialogue and engagement were important and that walking away would not help resolve the issues.

The Chair, Beverly Simpson, thanked the PSNI for remaining in the Chamber and continuing the conversation. She said we are all adults and should be able to remain and listen to each other.

Road Safety

The PCSP currently have two Speed Indicator Devices (SIDs) available for placement at locations across the city and district. The PCSP Manager advised that we are currently experiencing some difficulties with condensation inside the solar panel, which means they are not charging. We are exploring options for replacing/repairing these, as we know the SIDs are a good visual deterrent. Members were informed that it was £300 cheaper to buy a new SID as opposed to replacing one, however the funding agreement from the Joint Committee prohibits PCSPs from purchasing new SIDs.

The PCSP Manager advised that the Roadsafe Roadshow is taking place on 08/10/26 at Foyle Arena and is open to Year 13 and 14 students from schools in the DCSDC area.

DSPCSP 52/26 Any Other Business

Marie Brown thanked all PCSP members with regards their letter of support to the Katie Simpson Review. It has brought about changes for other women.

Ald Keith Kerrigan referred to an event with NW Ministry of Youth which he attended and had found very interesting. He referred to FGM and a FOI request which showed that 330 FGM cases were highlighted in hospitals here, but only 9 cases had been reported to PSNI. It is a statutory requirement in England and Wales for NHS staff to report to police when suspected FGM cases come before them, but this is not the case in Northern Ireland. He asked what the PSNI's approach was and felt the Department of Health and hospitals should inform them of FGM cases.

Supt Claire Hamilton stated she was aware of FGM, and it is a practice in some cultures. Members were informed that there are specifically trained officers for this. She reported that personally she has not seen much reporting in this area.

Cllr Martin Reilly arrived at the meeting at 11.30am and apologised for his lateness.

Cllr Reilly referred to the 'flee fund' for those affected by domestic violence and coercive control. The issue was raised at a recent event he attended with regards to financial implications where perpetrators are using cash to control victims' financial independence and even taking out loans in their name. He referred to availability of support for these cases.

Supt Hamilton responded and said there was a referral process for financial support through partner agencies for those affected by coercive control and financial abuse.

Patsy McGonagle asked PSNI to discuss the recent incident where a bus had been stolen in Omagh and travelled to Strabane. It was agreed to discuss this at the end of the meeting.

Marie Brown referred to service from Translink re vulnerable women. Translink may support those who are vulnerable and require assistance with a fare. She said Women's Aid fundraise and use their own funds to support people escaping domestic violence. She said women who are in employment face high rents if they leave their home and are often advised to leave work to get support with rent. She said it's important to keep people in work but said housing is one of the most serious issues they face.

The Chair reminded members that any member wishes to raise an issue under Chairperson's Business, they should contact the Chair the day before the meeting or within a reasonable time before the meeting commences.
